Control of Deer Population in Virginia Co

NEWS FROM COMMISSION OF GAME AND INLAND FISHERIES

(Education Bulletin No. 193)

It is important for hunters to realize that where the Commission has declared open seasons on antlerless deer it is intended that does shall be shot. Harvest of a proper number of females is the practical means of checking the increase of the animals in an area where they are becoming too numerous.

Based on intensive studies of the ranges and of existing deer populations, open seasons on antlerless deer have been declared on the last shooting day in 10 of the counties west of the Blue Ridge. This action was taken for the specific purpose of checking the increase in numbers of animals in those areas, for the future welfare of the deer as well as the hunters.

Lifting the ban on taking deer of either sex on the last day of the season, rather than on the first, was in keeping with the desire to get a larger number of does killed off. Hunters going into the woods for the first time rather naturally look for opportunity to bag bucks with trophy antlers and are likely to pass up chances to kill females.

It is a well-known principle in deer management that the pyramiding numbers of animals must be checked long before they become numerous enough to endanger their ranges. In many states they have had the distressing experience of having allowed the herds to become so large that they have destroyed their ranges for years to come. Browse for deer is not developed overnight.

Technicians of the Commission are making most careful studies of the mountain deer ranges and their carrying capacities with a view to preventing trouble from overbrowsing before it sets in. Strikingly enough, the very areas where efforts are now being made to control the numbers of animals are the same areas where there were no deer until the restocking program was inaugurated back in the 1930.

Problems in handling deer have been acute down through the years in many states. If hunters will follow the Commission's guidance in Virginia to repeat the errors which have led to tragic results elsewhere. In many areas deer have died by the hundreds because of overcrowded ranges and resulting undernourishment and starvation.

Experience has proved that there are serious problems in managing deer throughout the development of a deer population. While there appear to be no areas in Virginia where there is danger of reaching the starvation point, there must be continuing efforts to keep the numbers of animals in proper relationship to the availability of browse on their ranges.

Hundreds of clearings in the woods have been made and old logging roads and trails have been developed to supply greater abundance of food, and this important work will continue, but large numbers of deer have to depend mainly upon the native shrubs and mast of the forests which must not be depleted to the danger point.

Where food in abundance is not available, it has been found time and time again that the animals fall off in average weight, they are attacked by disease, the does become sterile, and the males seldom have fully developed antlers. These consequences are noted long before shortage of food is apparent to the casual observer.

When only bucks are shot in the hunting season, the herd continues to grow, for the females will produce an average of one and one-half fawns annually. The increase is not so noticeable until there are considerable numbers of deer on a range, then their numbers increase with amazing rapidity.

Harvesting a proper proportion of female deer is one of the most important factors in deer management. The hunters may know that when the Commission declares an open doe season it is for the purpose of applying wellknown principles of the intelligent manage-

RICHMOND CARILLON IN SUMMER CONCERTS

Virginia's World War Memorial Carillon in Richmond's beautiful Byrd Park, will be heard in six outdoor concerts each week. The concerts are being given by the Virginia Department of Conservation and Development to help keep alive the memorial to Virginia's war dead.

All kinds of music, from grand opera, classic, music to the most popular music, will be heard by the listeners sitting on the lawn at the base of the Carillon, or in their own cars, lawn chairs and pillows or blankets and sitting in their own cars.

The first concert will be given by the Carillon Concert Orchestra, with its star, Bernie Wayne, and the assistance of Ty at the clavier of the Carillon.

Rufty, an associate professor of music at the University of Richmond, is the only member of the city. He will be featured in the concert, opening and closing the program, as well as an authority on music in the middle of the

New Traffic Laws Are In Effect On Virginia State Highways

Several new laws went into effect July 1 on Virginia highways.

A driver caught traveling in excess of 75 miles per hour will be found guilty of reckless driving and will have his operator's license suspended for not less than 60 days, nor more than six months.

The lowering of lights law has amended to include a requirement that lights be lowered when coming up behind a vehicle as well as approaching one. The distance within which lights must be lowered is 200 feet.

There has been a slight, but important change regarding the school bus stop law, too. Heretofore a motorist had to stop when a bus was loading or unloading. Now an added requirement is that he must stop when a bus is loading or unloading, either in the motorist's direction or in the opposite direction, and he must remain stopped until all children are off the highway and the bus is in motion again.

The reckless driving law, formerly applying only to highways along such areas as schools, has now been amended to include church grounds, businesses and school and recreation grounds.

From now on anyone convicted of one reckless driving and one speeding violation will have his license suspended for 30 days. Heretofore two reckless driving convictions within a year brought a year's suspension, and two convictions of speeding in a year resulted in loss of license for 60 years.

A change in giving signals now requires motorists to give a turn signal, either by arm or mechanically, at least 100 feet before making the turn if going more than 35 miles an hour. If under 35 miles-per hour areas the old regulation of 50 feet still holds.

There is a new ban on throwing lighted cigarettes or any lighted material from a car when in or near forest and, brush of field containing burnable materials.

Work Started On New Service Station

Ground has been broken for a new modern service station, at the intersection of Routes 460 and 131. This is one of the town's top traffic corners. The station will be on the northeast corner of the property owned by H. Y. Spencer. Coleman

Virginia Had Lowest Fire Loss in South

Virginia came up with the lowest forest fire loss record for the entire South in 1953, it was announced by American Forest Products Industries, Inc., national sponsor of the Keep Green fire prevention program and the American Tree Farm System.

AFPI's report, based on government figures just released, showed 2,517 fires burned over 35,197 Virginia acres. This compares with 2,568 fires and 118,690 acres burned over in 1952. Virginia's Keep Green educational campaign to prevent woods fires was formally activated in 1945. All of the timberlands are under organized protection.

Texas had the second best fire loss record in the South last year with 40,148 acres burned over.

South Carolina was third with losses totaling 72,867 acres.

"The fine record made by Virginia last year proves the effectiveness of co-operation by all groups in a campaign to reduce forest fires," said James C. McClennan chief forester for AFPI.

Primaries Will Be Held in Two Districts Tues.

Democrats will nominate candidates for Congress in two Virginia districts next week. A few days later, state Republicans in convention will nominate a candidate to oppose the incumbent, A. Willis Robertson in November for a six-year term in the U. S. Senate.

Democratic primaries will be held next Tuesday in the Sixth and the Tenth Congressional Districts. Three candidates are listed in the Sixth, and the winner will face the Republican incumbent, Richard H. Poff in the November general election. The candidates for the Democratic nomination are: Powell Glass, Jr., Lynchburg newspaper executive; Delegate Ernest Robertson, of Roanoke County; and Dr. J. Carl Poindexter, of Salem, a former college professor. All three have waged active campaigns, but experts forsee a lack of great interest and a light vote. Poff has already been renominated by Sixth District Republicans.

There are four candidates in the Tenth District, and the winner will oppose the incumbent Republican Joel Broyhill, in the general election. The four candidates are: John C. Webb, Fairfax Delegate; Dean E. Brundage, director of social studies at Washington-Lee High School in Arlington; J. Walter White, of Fairfax, and Charles Lewis Knight, of Arlington.

In the Fourth District, Representative W. M. Abbitt, of Appomattox is without opposition for another term, and there will be no primary.

The Republican convention will be held in Roanoke July 17, to nominate a candidate to oppose Senator A. Willis Robertson.

Six-Month Traffic Record In Virginia is Best Since 1948

Richmond, Va.- A reduction of 10 Virginia traffic deaths during June, when compared with June, 1953, saw the Commonwealth reach the year's halfway mark with the lowest toll for six months since 1948, Col. C. W. Woodson, Jr., Superintendent of State Police has announced.

Subject to some slight upward revision due to late reports or deaths of persons no-r carried in an injured status, July began with 342 deaths which represent 82 less than for the same period last year. Six-month totals for past years were 424 for 1953, 422 for 1952, 440 for 1951, 400 for 1950, 359 for 1949, and 306 for 1948. In 1948, 730 people were killed and today traffic volumes are some 47 per cent higher than in that year.

Pedestrian deaths continued down with 69 comparing well with the 117 for the first six months of last year.

Col. Woodson warned against complacency and noted that the second half of the year invariably shows far more deaths than the first. "It is truly a condemnation of our civilization when we can point to 242 tragic, unnecessary deaths in only six months and call it a 'good' record," he said.

The Safety official again praised the stern license - suspension laws achieved and the authorization of radar as a speed detection device. He felt that the psychological effect of the device, which did not go into use until July 1, was felt in past months and noted some 70,000 drivers with first convictions of speeding or reckless driving were very apprehensive as to receiving their second and final one.

"Best of all," he said, "I believe that a healthier public attitude is becoming more and more apparent. This has been shown by their elected representatives and a general trend towards voluntary obedience of traffic laws and more courteous driving."

What A Ball Game; Score was 32 to 31

The ladies tried their luck playing softball Tuesday night at the Town Park. The Methodist girls played the girls from Oakville. Final score: 32 to 31, in favor of the Methodists!

Chas. Crawley Reappointed Trial Justice

Two appointments were made by Circuit Court Judge Joel F. Flood, as of July 1.

Charles F. P. Crawley was named for a new four-year term as Trial Justice of Appomattox County. This will be Judge Crawley's second four year term. He also served out the unexpired term of the late L. F. Ferguson.

J. S. Kinney was appointed to a two-year term as a member of the Board of Public Welfare of Appomattox County. He had been serving out the term of the late Frank Smith. Other members of the board are F. A. O'Brien, chairman, and L. J. Morris.

Market Cards Are Needed To Sell Wheat

As the 1954 wheat crop moves to market, county farmers are again reminded that marketing cards must be presented to the buyer to identify the wheat as free of penalty. If the wheat producer does not present the marketing card, the buyer has instructions to consider all the wheat subject to penalty and to collect $1.12 per bushel penalty, C. C. Harvey, county ASC chairman said today.

Appomattox County wheat farmers who are entitled to wheat marketing cards may pick up the cards at the county ASC office. If the operator is unable to visit the ASC office, he may request in writing that the card be mailed to him. A producer who plans to market his wheat at a remote point not in the presence of the buyer may obtain a marketing certificate from the ASC office to market his wheat by mail. If no wheat is to be marketed or if no wheat is to be milled, threshed or combined for toll, no card is needed. However, the farmers who pay wheat as toll for milling or combining services must present a marketing card to identify the wheat as penalty free.

Lewis Is Re-appointed

Judge Joel W. Flood has reappointed John F. Lewis to another four year term as Trial Justice of Prince Edward County.

Is another dry year in prospect for Appomattox County? Could be. Immediate prospects call for scattered thunder showers, but crops and pastures are crying for a general rain.

W. S. Taylor, local rainfall recorder for the weather bureau, reports that 1.64 inches of rain fell during the month of June. This is well below requirements, and scant reserves were built up over the winter in the water table. Some sections of the county doubtless had more than the 1.64 inches recorded by Mr Taylor, as some scattered rains missed the area and the site of the weather bureau tests. But June was definitely a dry month.

July has started off only a little better. Mr. Taylor has recorded only two rains thus far in July. One was a mere .2 of an inch and the other .41 of one inch.

The afternoon and evening of July Fourth saw several thunderstorms. Hail was reported in several scattered sections of the county. Tobacco was badly damaged on farms near Bent Creek, Hickburn and Richwood. Considerable rain fell in parts of the county, but the town had only a light shower. However during the accompanying wind, several trees were blown over. A sizeable limb was blown down on Church Street in Appomattox, near Lee Theatre. Electric current was off over an hour.

Although these scattered showers have helped, the area still needs a general rain.

Hail damage Saturday was heavy in parts of the tobacco belt. Halifax County suffered extensive loss.

In addition to tobacco, pastures and corn are suffered from lack of a general, soaking rain.

Levels of rivers and streams are down, and a few dry wells have been reported.

Although critical, the dryness has not yet become alarming, and most crops may yet be saved. Last year an extended drouth caused tremendous loss to Virginia farmers, and a repitition of drouth conditions this year could be ruinous.
